BASEBALL

Norway High School team won its seventh consecutive victory, Saturday afternoon by capturing the high school outfit at Gardiner.

This proved the toughest game thus far and Norway was forced to show stuff held in reserve. L. Davidson, the star twirler for Gardiner was not a jink to Norway as many predicted. He was tapped for eleven hits; four of the two bagger variety contributed by Sanborn, Allen and "Sim" Andrews, and a three sacker by Allen.

On the other hand Dale Allen as a boxman held the down-staters to four singles well scattered. He disposed of eleven by the air route, closing the ninth with three in a row.

Norway High School will play at Mexico, May 24, and Wednesday, May 28, the Gardiner team may be seen in action on the fair grounds between the Twin Towns. This game promises to be a real one with both teams out to win. Good support along the side lines will encourage the home outfit to play ball and incidentally help to pay bills.

Freshmen 7; Sophomores 5

The two classes at Norway High School went after it Friday afternoon on the diamond at Henry Foster's field and staged a snappy game with enthusiasm and thrills.

Both teams opened with a punch that landed four runs each but settled down to tight playing and goose eggs until the eighth. The Sophomores put one runner across in that session, but the Freshies tied it up in the ninth. A decision Sophomores made a slip, allowing two runs to slide across. They were held scoreless in this half and lost. Summary:

Norway H. S. 12; Gould's Academy 5

Norway defeated Gould's Academy at Bethel, Wednesday afternoon, in a slow moving contest stuffed with fielding errors and misplays. Both teams hit freely but Norway slamed out two for every one nailed by Gould's. Norway made a poor showing during the opening winnings, allowing Gould's to take the reins. After the third frame Norway settled down to base ball and the Academy outfit never scored.

"Sim" Andrews laced out a three bagger and Roy made a sensational steal from second base in the ninth and completely out-generaled the catcher. Summary:

A picked team from the Carroll Jellerson factory under the management of Paul Nevers, defeated the best that the Norway Shoe Co. could put on the diamond under the leadership of "Reggie" Dyer; by the score of 13 to 8. Several ragging remarks were heard from some well known Norway Shoe sports who left the field of battle when their team began to show a deficiency.

This contest settles a long standing argument as to the respective athletic ability of the two factories. Manager Billy White of the Twin Town team officiated as umpire. The line up:

The death of Mrs. Annie M. Noble, widow of the late Dr. Charles D. Noble, will bring memories to many friends, as she was a native of Norway, and later in life was again a resident. Her death occured at the home of her daughter in Portland, Conn., at the age of nearly 80 years. She was the daughter of Titus Olcott Brown, Jr., a leading business man of Norway, for many years, and one of the original members of the second Congregational church. Her mother was Nancy C. After attending school in Norway village she went to New Haven, Conn., with an older sister and attended high school where she was an honor student. In 1868 she was united in marriage with Dr. Charles D. Noble, a native of Norway, and for a year they resided in Louisville, Ky., where he had graduated from Medical college. At the end of the year they went to Oberlin, Ohio, where he practiced medicine, and they were both promnient in the social life of the city. After thirty years they returned to Norway, as Dr. Noble's health was failnig and he hoped the native air would prove beneficial. He passed away in November 1908, and for a few years Mrs. Noble remained in Norway with her two sisters, Miss Electra M. and Miss Ellen F. Brown.

The year following Dr. Noble's death Miss Electa passed away. While in Norway, Mrs. Noble was active in church work, and became a member of the Barton Reading Club where she was a valued member. Later she went to Connecticut to be with her daughter, Miss Nellie Noble, a teacher in Hartford. After her death a few years ago, she went to live with a married daughter where she passed away. Y., one sister, Miss Ellen F. Brown of Norway, who makes her home at W. C. Leavitt's, and several grandchildren.

BOWLING

Single Men 1343; Married Men 1341

A group of enthusiasts from Oxford settled an argument at Parrin's Alleys, Tuesday evening. The question of the superiority of single men over the hitched up kind was settled, but not in a decisive manner. In four strings, the teams were but two pins apart with the argument still red hot. According to the tally, the unattached men won, but their married brothers are no pikers and are skillful in spite of family cares.

Three bowlers tied for 351 while one poor married brother scored 317 and a single chap made 316.

Honors in single strings as a whole go to the married outfit. They picked the lead in two strings and tied one. The unmarried fellows won by ten pins in the second session, giving a winning margin.

League Practically Settled

The new league for this season has practically settled on four clubs, Star Taxis, Dixfield, Berlin, (N. H.) and Twin Towns. Billy White understands Farmington will not enter, owing to the long distance to Berlin.

Business Manager Bob Shaw of South Paris has arranged a schedule of games which will be submitted to the several managers at a meeting in Beals Tavern next Saturday at 2 p. m. At this time league officers will be chosen, rules and regulations drawn up and other business transacted. Choosing a name will be in order, Western Maine Inter-State League has been suggested.

Billy White is greatly pleased with local conditions and predicts a big season. The Twin Towners will report here on June 17 for immediate practice. One or two payers signed have gone elsewhere so a new ine-up to open the season will include Jay, lf; Cahil, cf; Whits, rf; Robinson, ss; Merriman, 3b; Jackson, 2b; Whalen, 1b; Kneeland, c; Beck, Hayes, Paynter, pitchers.

Tom Joy, the new outfielder, comes from Lowel, Mass., and is now playing with the Lawrence Textiles. He is a hard hitter and sensational fielder. "Whitie" has played with him and is confident the veteran will please Twin Town fans.

A score board 10x12 feet will be erected near the present board. This is a present from the Rumford Bottling Co. and advertises the goods while displaying the score by innings.

Fourth of July si somewhere in the future but the Association has secured the Lawrence K. of C. for one game and possibly the Boston Tigers for one other. A real baseball day is in mind.

ob Perry, the popuar eft fielder of last season, cannot accept the salary we pay and will hook up with Manchester. Managre White is disappointed but he believes Tom Joy will work that garden in an acceptabe manner.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

Come to Hundreds of Norway People

There are days of dizziness;

Spells of headache, languor, backache;

Sometimes rheumatic pains;

Often urinary disorders.

Doan's Pills are especially for kidney ills.

Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. W. J. Olmstead, 95 Main St., Norway, says: "My kidneys began to give me trouble as they were weak. My back ached so badly I could hardly get through with my housework and everything I undertook to do seemed a drag. I was dizzy and could see star-like spots before my eyes. My feet and ankles swelled. I read about Doan's Pills being good and sent for some. When I had finished taking them, I felt as well as ever. The backache ceased and my kidneys became regulated. I have told a number of people about Doan's.

VEGETABLES ARE EXACTING AS TO PREPARATION OF THE SOIL

By Seth W. Shoemaker

Perhaps no class of plants are more exacting in regard to soil conditions than vegetables. This does not mean that vegetables cannot be produced on poor soil, but it does mean that if such soil is used it must be handled in such a way that the requirements of the vegetables will be met.

A friable soil is essential for vegetables, that is, one that may be easily worked. A sandy soil is good, but it must not be too light to hold water; on the other hand, it must not be too heavy. To be in the best condition for all vegetables the soil should contain an abundance of humus or organic matter. The land must also be well drained so that the water will not stand on it in puddles. Vegetables will not stand wet feet.

Vegetables of good quality may be grown on ash piles. In fact, better results can be had on ash piles than on heavy clay soil, but in order to make the ash pile bloom, organic matter must be worked into it, preferably in the form of an abundance of humus. An ash pile is good, particularly if a little soil is mixed with it, because the drainage is so good. On the other hand, if the ashes are not supplied with a goodly amount of organic matter they are liable to become too dry in hot weather.

The ash pile is mentioned particularly because many people think such a foundation for a soil is hopeless. On the contrary, it is a fair prospect

In case you happen to have an accumulation of ashes as a start for a garden the most decided first step should be to hoe 2 inches or 3 inches of soil on the ashes after first smoothing them over. Then a good per cent. of manure should be applied at the rate of 1 pound to about 2 square feet. If the soil is not available for this purpose the manure will usually be sufficient for a fair garden.

If, on the other hand, the garden soil is too heavy, that is, contains a considerable amount of clay, it must have humus or organic matter supplied in liberal quantities and sometimes an application of a couple of inches of ashes or sand to the humus before the application of the organic matter.

To test the condition of a clay soil take up a ball in the hands and squeeze it. If it forms in a well formed ball when the hand is opened, the soil will generally be considered too heavy for good results and one of the methods suggested for lightening it should be attempted.

Occasionally a mixture of light, sandy soil will be found in gardens, especially in the Coastal Regions. On such soil an application of a few loads of a heavier soil will often prove beneficial. Humus or organic matter will also bring such soil into a good workable condition and enable it to hold moisture without becoming too wet.

The material humus that we hear so much about is merely decayed organic matter either in the form of manure or decomposed vegetable matter such as leaves, roots, etc., but for the home gardener the most convenient form is good stable manure. Some gardeners, however, plant in their home garden some crop in the fall that will carry over the winter and give them a good amount of organic matter in the spring. It is advisable where suitable manure is not available. There are a number of such crops; rye is commonly used, and a better combination is rye and vetch sown in the proportion of two pounds of rye seed to one pound of vetch seed. One pound of this mixture should be sufficient for 500 to 1,000 square feet of garden space.

Manure should be applied early in the season. It is best when partially rotted, but fresh manure may be used if it is not too strong. If the ground is not too sloping, manure can be applied on snow and it will sink down into the soil as the snow melts. Where the land slopes steeply, however, it may run off before it penetrates into the soil and in this case an application had better not be made until the snow has disappeared.

Manure without shavings is usually considered more valuable than manure containing too large a quantity of shavings. Shavings may serve a useful purpose on heavy soil by making it light, and on sandy soil it may make the soil too light. Many gardeners will argue that shavings have a tendency to make the soil acidic. This, however, has been considerably exaggerated. The acidity caused by shavings can be easily corrected with an application of lime.

HANG MAY BASKETS

The hanging of May baskets by thousands of Maine boys and girls will have an added interest this year for the youngsters who participate in this annual Spring-time custom. As they build the baskets which they later will hang on the doors of their friends and neighbors, the thoughts of Maine youngsters will turn to their little companions and other children who—because they are sick or crippled, are unable to take part in this May-time festivity.

Little greeting cards to be placed in each basket, with a space for the name and address of the child presenting the basket are being supplied by the Maine Public Health Association. A packet of these cards has been forwarded by the association to each of the more than 5,000 members of the Maine State Teachers Association. Each teacher is asked by Miss Edith Soule, Chairman of the Child Health Section of the Maine Public Health Association, to supply all her pupils who hang May baskets with greeting cards enough to provide one for each basket. An additional supply of greetinb cards may be had merely by making the request. Each greeting card calls the attention of the "grown-ups" to the help that must be given Maine boys and girls who are sick or crippled if they are to have a fair chance at obtaining an education and to develop into strong and healthy men and women. A silver offering to be set by the "grown-ups" who receive the May basket special greeting card to the Maine Public Health Association, 318 Water St., Augusta, to be used for work on behalf of these Maine boys and girls is earnestly requested on pages three and four of the little card.

Each card bears the additional information that the appeal is endorsed, by Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, State Commisioner of Education, Dr. Clarence F. Kendall, State Health Commissioner, Mrs. Sarah Rideout Abbott, President of the Maine Parent Teacher Association, and Mrs. Florence Danforth, President of the State Federation of Clubs.

National Highways No Joke

The man who is laughed at today is revered tomorrow. They laughed at Bell and his telephone, Edison and his electric light, and Langley with his crazy flying machine. The Wright brothers were derided, the discoverer of X-rays were ridiculed, and the "radio delusion" brought siles and amusement. But not now!

It is as impossible for us to say, now, what the road of the future is to be, as it was impossible for us to say, five years ago, what the radio broadcast of today would be.

An inventor wants, to interest capital in making a roadway of steel. It will cost, if built, not thousands, but several hundred thousands of dollars per mile. Road builders laugh. The public laughs. We all laugh. Why pay three hundred thousand dollars a mile for roads when we can get them for a few thousands?

Twenty years ago the idea of paying twenty-five thousand dollars a mile for road was laughed at!

This steel idea may be all wrong. It hasn't been tried. It may be chimerical in the extreme. We don't know. But we do know that laughing at it because it's different is no way to prove it idiotic. Ten years ago people laughted at the idea of national highways. They don't laugh any more. More and more people are coming to think that highways are as much a part of the Nation's business as waterways, Panama Canal, battleships, an army.

The new idea is always laughed at. Laughter doesn't prove anything except the "stand-pat mind" of the laugher. Maybe steel roads at three hundred thousand dollars a mile are impractical. But why not bring something else to bear on the question beside laughter? Nobody laughs at national highways any more; not even Congress!

The joke of yesterday is the fact of to-day. Maybe we will yet ride on national highways of steel! They laughed at steel rails for locomotives, too. They laughed at transcontinental highways. And how they did laugh at DeLesseps and his Panama Canal!

He laughs best who laughs last.

Keeping Roads Open in Winter

It is not only essential to build a hard road if highway transportation is to be possible; it is necessary to keep it open to traffic. There is no economic difference between a broken-down bridge and a three foot fall of snow, as far as stopping traffic is concerned. There is no economic difference between a road blocked with a fallen boulder or tree and one which is snowed under so that neither team nor truck can travel over it.

Few communities would wait an instant to repair the bridge, or remove the boulder or tree; the idea that the hundreds of thousands of dollars invested in the good road should lie idle, and a whole section be cut off from the benefits of transport, until the bridge mended itself, the boulder rolled off, or the tree rotted away, is abhorent. But many communities regard a heavy fall of snow as a visitation of Providence, with which man need not interfere, because in time the same providence will melt the snow and open the road!

In regions where snow blocks the roads, modern engineers are using rotary snow ploughs, attached to trucks, and opening the road as soon as it closes, exactly as the railroad right of way men keep the tracks open for trains regardless of the state of the weather.

Rotary ploughs to be applied to trucks are not expensive; push and scraper ploughs for lesser snowfalls are still less costly. Opening the road for traffic after a snowfall is as essential as mending bridges and maintaining the surface. Communities in the snow belt which do not have the benefits of their good roads all the year 'round, "save at the spiggot to lose at the bung hole," since the monetary value of one day's lost traffic is more than sufficient to buy the equipment and keep the snow bound road open all winter.

Road Building a Science

When John Louden Macadam, in 1810, began to experiment with broken stone for building roads he met with much opposition from the "stand-pat" road builders, who contended that the expense would be prohibitive and that anyway, broken stone in courses of assorted sizes was no better than broken stone of one size in one course.

Time proved the merit of Macadam's idea, although the century and nine years which have elapsed since his first practical experiment was tried at Bristol, England, in 1815, have greatly altered the practice of macadamized road building.

Up to the advent of the automobile, Macadam's principles were employed in their entirety, the broken stone being bonded with rock dust and water, the former replaced by the impact of iron shod vehicles and hoofs, the latter by rain.

When the automobile with its rapid sucked the rock dust from between the stones in spite of the gentle bonding effort of the water, it was realized that something was lacking in the roads used for fast, soft-shod traffic. That "something" was a better bond than water. It was found in oils and tars and bituminous compounds. Luckily for the millions of dollars invested in macadmaized roads, an oil, tar, or bituminous binder could and was, applied with success to existing roads, thus saving to the taxpayer miles of highways which were otherwise doomed.

Today, all macadamized roads are built with the bituminous oil or tar binder applied during the building, but the basic principles of larger foundation and smaller upper course, topped by a wearing surface of fine crushed rock and dust, bound in place by something is still employed. Macadam's greatest monument is, the dropping of thecapital letter in his name and making it the label for all roads built of crushed rock laid in courses of different sizes.

National Highways Means National Safety

The maximum use of roads can only come when they are made safe for maximum use. A dangerous road will always be less used than a safe one and a road dangerously used by some will be less used by others than a road wisely used by all.

At the present time two States give licenses to drivers without examinations of any kind. Ask for it, pay a fee, and get it. Drive anyway—safely, dangerously, drunkenly; these States apparently do not care! Ten States have no age limit on drivers; you can give a child of five a car and tell him to drive to town without violating the law.

Naturally these States do not have roads built as safe as other States which insist on ability to drive before granting a license and recognize the fact that a ton and a half of steel at speed is no missle to put in the hands or the judgment of a small child.

One of the great benefits which will result from the establishment of national highways throughout the Nation will be uniform laws for their use. Such laws will not in any way conflict with the State laws, for the States through which the highways pass will have equal voice in the making of national highway laws. It is evident that when a road is national property the Nation is responsible for who shall not drive upon it and the speeds at which driving shall be done. More and more is it coming to be believed that great trunk-line highways must be more than single roads; that they must have a central spean for fast going and other spans for slower going. The way to makespeed safe is not to hold it down but to make a place for it. But the immediate question is not so much safety from speeding as safety from incompetence of driving as well as incompetence of road building, which permits the dangerous curve, the unfenced bend near a bluff, the too narrow road, the absence of illumination, etc.

These, and the problems of no laws or poor laws, may be solved in time, under any system, but will be solved speedily and solved well by the establishment of a system of national highways, great trunk lines built and forever maintained by the National Government, which will also supervise their use and police their length.

BRUCE BARTON SAYS ONLY CONSTANT ADVERTISING PAYS

Bruce Barton, nationally known author and magazine writer, as well as an advertising expert, urges public utility companies to use advertising more intelligently and more continuously.

He points out that keeping the public informed is necessarily a continuous job, as those who are informed move away or die and the new ones take their places.

"Be genuine, be simple, be brief," is Barton's message. "Talk to people in terms and in language they understand and finally and most of all, be persistent.

You can't expect to advertise in flush times and live on the memory of it, when you are hard up. You can't expect to advertise when in trouble and expect to get anything in that direction. It is a day-by-day and hour-by-hour business.

"If the amount of money that has been thrown away by people who advertise spasmodically was all gathered together it would form and endow the most wonderful home for aged advertising men and their widows in the world. Don't throw any of that money away. If it's worth doing at all, it's worth doing all the time."—Clairton (Pa.) Progress.

Young man! Listen to your uncle. Don't propose to a girl until after you have heard her talk to her mother at a time when she does not think anybody else is listening. The way a girl talks to her mother describes the true character of the girl.

If fathers would tell their sons more, and mothers would tell their daughetrs more, a great deal of misery and sin would be prevented. False modesty is promoting hell.

Practice not only makes perfect but annoys the neighbors.

Quite a few men are sensible in everything except the way they sign their names on checks.

Trout Brook Fishing Results

Ice left the Lake at Norway, Monday, April 21st. Also Round Pond cleared the same day. The rise of water and heavy winds caused its break-up rather than warm weather and sunshine.

A week later, Monday, the 26th, I visited Lombard Brook to see how the trout had wintered. Water was exceedingly high but one 3 ounce trout was taken. It was the only offer and was accepted with thanks that the cold spell called winter was passing. Long legged rubber boots were warm and Walter waited in the car while I fished.

One day passed and on the following afternoon I had a call to visit Lombard Brook. Water had dropped and fishing conditions were good. The trip resulted in 5 trout weighing 21 1-2 ounces.

Wednesday, April 30th, a third visit was made to the same brook and 9 1-2 ounces of trout was represented in three fish.

Heavy rains and high water interfered with brook fishing up to Monday, May 5th, when the Depot brook in Oxford was fished over. This brook is largely fed by springs and water was at the right pitch. Five trout were taken weighing 10 3-4 ounces in some four and a half hours. Mr. Gibson, depot master for the past 22 years at Oxford Station took me along with him to Norway.

Wednesday, May 7th, the weather was unfit for indoors as the sun shone brightly, warm and spring like. Walter took me overland via: West Paris and the new road to Greenwood City. The new road is a big improvement and was built three years ago. It follows the course of the river.

Hick's Pond outlet was fished and only one trout induced to take the wiggling angleworm. I fished down almost to where the Niles brook comes into the river and no fish were seen. Water too high and too cold. Dinner was had in the usual place in Cole's meadow. One of our usual fishing party has gone to the unknown land since I was last here and from appearance had taken the trout with him.

The Morgan brook, where it crosses the road, was tried and nothing doing as was Bessie or Daniel's brook. The foot of Elwell's Falls was fished with same results.

Walter B. Rand at Locke Mills was consulted and he said I was too early, at least fifteen minutes too early as trout didn't bite as long as banks of snow could be seen on the mountain side. The brook running through Quimby Perham's meadow was next fished. Several chub and one good trout were taken. Near the new cement bridge over the Nute brock, five sizable fish were taken and many short ones restored to the water.

Arrived in Norway at 5.55 p. m. with 7 trout weighing 12 1-4 ounces. I had ridden 46 miles and enjoyed the trip greatly.

Total number of trout caught and killed in 5 trips closing May 7th was 21 that weighed 57 ounces or put so it can be easily understood: three pounds and a half plus one ounce—undressed brook trout. Distance traveled on foot and by car not far from one hundred miles.

Was it worth while? You say!

"WHY I AM A GRANGER"

Justice Barnes said that in the years when he was teacher and superintendent of schools and during the early years of his law practice, he found that the people who would stick by one through thick and thin were most frequently the farmers.

The man who by grafting the bud of an improved variety upon a wild apple tree shoot brought productivity into waste places, the man who placed hives of bees on the south side of a granite ledge where, protected from the cold, they brought to him and his family a living, and the men who accepting the germ theory, then new sprayed their apple trees and secured a profitable crop in place of a poor one, were grangers.

He joined the Grange that he might be helped by the associatoin with that sort of people.

In the Grange, as in his home, he had learned, like the Israelites of old one cannot make bricks without straw. Grangers have opportunity to work with Nature and Nature's God; not only in the sense of the man who grafts his apple trees, places his bees in a favorable situation or sprays his fruit trees, but in the training of youth—that the world may improve.

Youth is not trained, he said, so much by precept and principle as by contact and impression. The memory of a look on a loved face will hold one to one's course. The knowledge of the approval which a certain course of conduct will secure points out the course as the needle points the pole. Shoot the soft clay of youth through with the fibre of character and when it has passed through the furnace of life, the result will be, a man four square to life.

May 9th will be Arbor Day, but will not be observed as a holiday in the schools.

Richard Crocker, breaking, entering and larceny.

Civil Matters

The first case for trial was John Orino vs Charles Levin and an action to secure $471.40 for a broken plate glass window. It was claimed an awning insecurely fastened and not properly put up caused the trouble. The jury returned a verdict for the whole amount.

The case of John C. McKinnon vs Eugene H. Dorr both of Mexico was non-suited. This was an action for alienation of affections.

Simon Putlis brought action against William C. Burray to recover the value of a horse which had to be shot after being struck by the defendent's auto. A claim was made that the animal's leg was broken in the accident. The defense contended the leg was hurt before the accident. The jury returned a verdict for Putlis, setting the amount at $268.20.

Carroll W. Maxwell vs Frank Jannaci for breach of contract was an action to recover damages from the collapse of a hay trade. Maxwell claimed Jannacci agreed to purchase sixteen tons of hay, price to be ten dollars per ton. Jannacci admitted making a trade but said no mention was made of any specified amount. He took three and one-half tons, paying $35. The verdict was for Maxwell in the sum of $125.

Andover Couple Indicted for Murder

This is an outcome of an investigation by the selectmen of Andover, when a daughter was born to Mrs. Lufkin in January as recorded by the town clerk and attending physician, could not be found when taking the town inventory in April. Mrs. Lufkin is said to have denied the existance of the baby. Thurlow is charged with making a statement that the infant died and was buried in the cellar of the Chas. Smith house in Andover.

Sheriff Frothingham and his deputies dug over the cellar and found no traces of a body. Later charred bones found in a stove were examined by Dr. F. N. Whittier of Bowdoin College. As a result of the examination the couple were taken into custody.

A verdict of $400 was returned for the plaintiff in the trover case of Alton C. Maxim of South Paris vs M. J. Marshall. The testimony showed that in 1922 Harry King of Bethel bought a Reo truck from A. C. Maxim, plaintiff in the case giving his note and mortgage as security. King then tried to sell the truck to M. J. Marshal, the defendent, agreeing it was said, to give the truck and $2,000 for Marshall's farm. This proposition was acceptable to Marshall, but King was not able to raise $2,000.

However, Marshall kept the truck, had it registered and used it. King claimed that Mrshall would neither give up the truck or pay for it, while Marshall said he was still willing to abide by King's proposition to trade for the farm.

The jury was out but a short time and brought in a verdict of $400 for the plaintiff.

The case of M. J. Marshall vs Fred E. Wheeler, was tried Monday. Parker and McCarthy serving as attornies for the plaintiff and Attorney Wheeler for Wheeler. Suit was brought by Marshall in this case against a deputy sheriff. Wheeler went to Bethel with a writ in favor of Alton C. Maxim of Paris vs M. J. Marshall to take a speed wagon. On arriving, the keeper of the Marshall property refused to let him have the key to the stable where the car was kept whereupon Wheeler went to the stable the door of which was fastened with a padlock and removed nails to gain entrance and took the car. By order of the court the jury was instructed to return a verdict for the defendent. The plaintiff appealed to the law court.

The case of Elizabeth C. Marshall vs Fred Wheeler, trespess, McCarthy and Parker attornies for the plaintiff and A. C. Wheeler for the defendent, followed. The property in this case was owned by Mrs. Marshall who brought suit for trespessing. She, however, was unable to show that any damage had been done. The Judge directed the jury to return a verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $1.

John Melanson and William Giler, with whom authorities recently had a battle near Bethel at which time a touring car was seized with a load of alky. They were charged with unlawful transportation without written consent of mortgagee, intimidating an officer, transporting without a Federal permit and illegal possession. They retracted pleas of not guilty and pleaded guilty. They will be sentenced later.

State vs. Alfred J. McInnis, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Pleaded guilty. Fined $50 and costs of $27.

Leon Roman, assault and battery. Retracted plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. To be sentenced later.

State vs. Annie Shippon, unlawful possession, single sale, common seller and nuisance. Pleaded guilty. To be sentenced later.

State vs. John Joseph Bernard, possession of still. Pleaded guilty. To be sentenced later.

State vs. Emie Giroux, nuisance. Pleaded guilty. To be sentenced later.

State vs. William Lafrance, nuisance. Pleaded not guilty. Was found guilty by jury. To be sentenced later.

THE VARIETIES OF VEGETABLES ARE LEGION

Varieties of vegetables are legion in number, and the matter is still further complicated by the fact that each seedsman will add a word or two to the name of common seeds in order to distinguish them as his own. Thus we may have two or three dozen names for the same variety of vegetables. This is especially confusing with the beginner in gardening.

As a matter of fact it is difficult to recommend any particular strain or variety for all conditions of soil and climate. The selection of varieties is of the utmost importance. Many mishaps in home gardening have come from carelessness or ignorance in the selection of varieties.

All the larger and more reputable seed houses now maintain extensive experimental grounds at which new varieties are continually being produced and the old ones tested and improved. Competition between these concerns has brought about a very high standard of excellence which offers to the gardener a wide choice of seeds of proved quality. It is possible to produce quality vegetables, or, in fact, any other class of plants from inferior seeds, so care and judgment must be exercised.

Every year many novelties are put upon the market by most seed houses. They are advertised in their catalogues in glowing colors and often with extravagant claims. In the hands of experienced growers they will oftentimes live up to the promises made for them by their originators; but, as a rule, they are not well enough established to have proved their worth except under the somewhat artificial environments of an experimental breeding station. The home gardener, therefore, should not mortgage his chance of success by trials of such novelties. There are hundreds of standard varieties of all vegetables that have stood the test of time in thousands of gardens, both commercial and home, in all parts of the country. If ordinary cultural care is given to them they can be counted upon to produce results without the uncertainty of a new introduction.

These the home gardener should choose when making up his seed list, buying them from reliable sources. The following table is not intended to be complete, but will suggest a few of the standard sorts that have been the delight of gardeners for many years:

A Few Standard Varieties

Asparagus: Palmetto.

Beets: Crosby's Egyptian, Detroit Dark Red.

Celery: Golden Yellow, Self Blanering, White Plume.

Lettuce: May King, Tennis Ball, Grand Rapids.

Onions: Southport, Yellow Globe, Extra Early Red.

Peas: Alaska, Telephone.

Radish: Non Plus Ultra, Early Scarlet Globe.

Spinach: Victoria, New Zealand.

Squash: Long Island, White Bush.

ARE YOU A DRIVER OR DO YOU DRIVE?

There are only two kinds of people in the world—the drivers and the driven. The drivers are of two kinds—those who drive their own lives and those who drive the day's work of other people. The driven are also of two kinds—those who are balky and those who are unharnessed for life to an unhappy task.

If you dream that life is all peaches and cream you will find yourself driven so fast over a rocky road that there will be little time for anything but pulling after a hard day's work. If you discover that life is full of stern duties you must perform, you are then ready to be your own driver.

Once you have made up your mind, forever you will find that it is as easy to be driven—and it pays better. As soon as "trouble overtakes you" it will find itself harnessed and you will drive it away.

If you are a wise driver, you will get on the right road. If you are a careful driver you will not have any collisions. If you keep wide awake you will not be struck by the train of unfortunate circumstance at the crossing.

If you keep a firm grip on the reins you will not get in a rut or drive over in the ditch. You will drive without pausing, past all the unhappy memories, all the old grudges, all the blasted hopes and all the sour grape vines that ever cumbered up your life. Drive with a firm hand and an honest mind, with a strong will and a clear eye, until you are welcomed in the home of your ambition—and may you never play your welcome false.

Lightning Stored in Woodchuck Hole

Frank L. Jewell of Norway has seen a bit of the world while serving under Dewey in the navy, but a dry land experience which he tells might prove a good recommendation for membership in some Ananias Club. Here is the yarn in his own words: "One day I was crossing a field to make a short cut home. A thunder shower was coming my way so I made quick steps. I saw a streak of lightning go to the ground, and arriving at the place I found that it went into a woodchuck's hole. I picked up a large, flat rock that lay close by and covered the hole. The next summer as I chanced to be passing that way, I saw the rock and thought I would put it on a wall close by. As I did so, the streak of lightning shot out and went up into the clouds where it came from the year before. I hurried home as fast as I could, thinking what a close call I had."

You Are Cordially Invited

The above sentence is stricken from the items many times a week—it cannot go. Every public entertainment, supper, dinner, dance, picture show, lecture, church service, ball game, fair and sale are for everyone to attend who wish, and you are most cordially invited to attend every one of them, but we cannot extend the invitation with each item.

Take it once for all that you are invited with a loud and urgent call to attend all of these public functions as they come—in fact that is the reason for holding them—for you to attend and the bigger the crowd the better.

The same applies to all lodge, society, committee or club meetings except that those invited are the members belonging and every one of them is wanted to be present.

Gladys Barker secured the $2.50 gold piece at the "Gold Mine" show at Rex Monday evening. "Shavey" Noyes and Frank Jewell were among the number to find quarters and halves in the envelopes. "Picture Bill" gave away $12.00 that night.

BOOZE CAR CAUGHT AT BETHEL.

The hold-up was at the overhead bridge of the G. T. R., two booze cars coming from Berlin, N. H. It happened that A. C. Maxim having some papers to serve in that vicinity, made the statement before starting that he was going prepared to do business. It looks as if he intended to do business as he took as guard and assistance, Hon. Alton C. Wheeler and Fred Wheeler, sheriff, all of South Paris. Arriving at Bethel, they added Harry King, deputy sheriff of Bethel, to their squad. On calling at Henry Hastings' office, Deputy King got a tip that two booze cars were coming down the Berlin road. The squad rushed to the corner of the hold-up, arriving there about five minutes ahead of the two booze cars. As Deputy King had left his gun and badge at home, he asked deputy Wheeler to stop the car. The loaded booze car was piloted by a large Lincoln which arrived at the corner five rods ahead of the Marmon, which contained seventy-eight gallons of booze. Deputy Wheeler, stepping into the road in front of the Lincoln, demanded it to hault, in response to his demand the driver put on more gas and Deputy Wheeler had to move one side and let them pass. Deputy King says, "Get the next car," so on the command deputy Wheeler opened up with his automatic after commanding them to hault. The two in the car ducked nearly below the wind shied and put on all speed possible. At this time the car was within ten feet of Deputy Wheeler and he opened fire, the first shot going through the hood, striking the engine, glancing into the gas tank, causing a bad leak. His next shot hit the wind shield frame right in a direct line with the driver, the next shot going through the front curtain, just under the driver's arm and under the wheel, hitting the gas tank, glancing into the frame, the next one passed through the curtain, also hitting a can of booze. The next went through the back of the car and out through the top back of the shield. This ended the hold-up at the corner, then the chase begun. The two booze cars split at the depot, the pilot car going down the state road, the one loaded with booze taking up Main street to the square, turning to the left, then running to Dr. Gehring's as that is the end of the street, they had to turn and take Paradise road in order to get out of the village.

A. C. Maxim and Fred Wheeler gave chase with A. C. Maxim's Reo coupe gaining on the Marmon and getting so close the booze car took to a woods road near the crossing on this road, about one mile out of Bethel.

Maxim and Wheeler noticed the tracks going into the road as they passed, so on arriving at a farm house just below, they made certain that the booze car had not proceeded ahead, by asking a woman. The car ahead had not passed, Maxim and Wheeler rushed back to the wood road and arrived just in time to stop the booze car from returning into the main road after hiding their booze. They run their car into the pines and took to the woods. If they had had two minutes more, they would have gotten back into the road, but as Maxim and Wheeler were so close, they had to run their car into the pines and take to the woods on foot.

At this point after examining the car, Deputy Wheeler stood guard while Maxim went for assistance, returning soon with a shot gun, rifle and revolvers. At this time, Deputy Wheeler took charge of the booze hunt and A. C. Maxim and Hon. A. C. Wheeler took chase after the Lincoln, but got no clue. At 1:30 o'clock Wheeler and Maxim got a call to come to Bryant's Pond to identify two men who arrived in a Ford car. On arriving there they found the two booze men. At sight of Maxim and Wheeler they took down the street. As Hon. Wheeler always wants to be on the safe side, he borrowed a revolver before taking chase and soon overtaking the men, they were driven into Maxim's car and at the point of Mr. Wheeler's revolver until the high sheriff, W. O. Frothingham arrived and took them in charge.

PRODUCTS OF MAINE

Maine, from the earliest days having played an important part in shipbuilding and foreign trade, now is taking keen interest in the Eleventh National Foreign Trade Convention that will be held in Boston on June 4, 5, and 6. Last year the Pine Tree State produced $94,000,000 worth of paper and pulp, $50,000,000 worth of boots and shoes, $17,000,000 worth of canned and cured fish and clams, $8,000,000 worth of canned vegetables and fruits and $2,000,000 worth of furs, a considerable portion of which products were shipped to foreign lands. If there is a way to boom this trade still more the entire State will benefit. The coming convention, it is believed, is destined to mark a revival in the traditional position of all New England in foreign trade, where it formerly was a pioneer. Last year the foreign trade of the entire country totalled $7,959,884,334.

Perhaps because of the Yankee ingenuity of her sons, Maine always has had some industries which were unique and whose products always were salable in the four corners of the earth. Deservedly she has a great summer resort business, but still it is not sufficient to maintain her population, steadily growing, without manufactures. While commercial shipbuilding has declined to a mere reminder of what it was half a century ago along the coast of Maine, there still are turned out annually hundreds of pleasure crafts of various types. This is an industry that is growing. Several concerns have built up a wonderful reputation and considerable foreign business by producing birch bark canoes of the Indian type, almost impossible to purchase elsewhere, and other canoes of canvas, pleasure yachts and motor boats. South America already buys many Maine canoes, and exporters say that the field has hardly been scratched.

Rowboats are another product that is widely sold, and moccasins once again remind one of the Maine Indians. The moccasins of Maine manufacture have proved their popularity not only in this country but in Canada and overseas. With the gradual return of stable business conditions, say the manufacturers, moccasins may yet be shown in every shoe store the world around because of their peculiar adaptability to certain uses. Maine also exports snowshoes, skis and various other similar products. Perhaps the most universally known product of the Pine Tree State is Poland water. It is claimed that "the sun never sets on Poland water," because it is sold on every continent, and probably hardly a passenger ship leaves an American port without a supply on board. Maine also ships abroad marine engines, shoes, textiles, dieblocks made from her hardwoods and which go all over the world, pill-boxes, made of her sort woods and "tongue depressers," the little strip of wood that the doctor uses to keep your tongue in place while he surveys the inner regions of your mouth and throat to see if there is a "spot" to be found. It is a great improvement over the teaspoon of olden days. Maine's soft woods also furnish a goodly portion of the world's supply of newsprint.

One interesting problem that will be taken up at the convention will be that of apple exports. England always used to take a very large percentage of Maine's winter apples, most of them being shipped out of Portland direct to Liverpool. More recently, however, the increase in freight rates has exerted a depressing effect on this trade, and the convention will consider ways and means to overcome the handicap and restore the apple market of Britain to the growers of Maine fruit.

The Maine Canners' Association which comprises thirty large companies, is one of the State's leading factors in the production of canned fruits and vegetables for the home and foreign markets. Maine was the largest single producer in the total output last year of $2,712,681 worth of canned sardines, many of which were sent to outside countries.

Auburn, as probably few Maine people realize, is the greatest centre in the world for the manufacture of canvas shoes. Thousands of its shoes for babies go to Cuba, leaving enough at home to take care of every infant in the Pine Tree State. Auburn-made canvas shoes for adults find ready sale not only throughout the United States but in Mexico, Cuba, Columbia, Australia, South Africa, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

If Maine has a more unique product than "sucker sticks" made for the candy suckers, it is hard to recall. The State also sends out many tons of spruce gum, both as it is dug from the tree trunks and as melted into sticks. Cattle salve, steel tape and leatherboard are other unusual products.

The three thousand industrial establishments of Maine employ more than 90,000 workers and send their products everywhere. These products are valued at $450,000,000 and the annual payroll amounts to nearly $100,000,000. The manufacturers buy yearly $250,000,000 worth of raw materials and it is interesing to note that some of the tin, copper and raw wool used had to be secured from countries thousands of miles distant.

In making of Portland an important export and import port, largely through State help, Maine has expressed its determination to encourage foreign trade. The new State pier, 1,000 feet long, furnishes the best of facilities for handling export or import cargoes. Through Portland in 1922 there were shipped in trans-Atlantic trade 599,312 tons and the exports covered a wide variety of manufactured goods. Nearly 20,000,000 bushels of grain was one item. The principal imports received were China clay from England, oil from Tampico, pulpwood from New Brunswick and wood pulp from Norway and Sweden.

LESSONS IN FRUIT GROWING GLEANED FROM VISITING MAINE ORCHARDS

In planning the orchard we should have in mind several factors which will have a direct bearing on the productiveness and longevity of the trees. Some kinds of soils and surface presentations are preferable to others, as they are better adapted to this fruit and require less expense in preparation and cultivation of the orchard. There seems to be little or no difference in the productivity of the orchard whether it slopes to the north, south, east or west. It usually is the man behind the gun.

The site should be elevated above its immediate surroundings, thus giving a free circulation of air, while such an elevation will also be of great aid in guarding against late spring frosts, so fatal to young fruit at the blossoming season, and will give a much beter water drainage which is absolutely essential to the growth and health of the trees.

Apple trees will grow on most any kind of soil which is well prepared, but the different kinds of soil will require different treatment and after care. A rich loam that has plenty of humus in it is the ideal one to select. This, if the land is well prepared, will withstand the drought period if it is given frequent stirrings with the harrow and will require less fertilizing. The heavy clay soil is the least desirable of any. In preparing it for setting, the soil should be deeply plowed and then thoroughly broken up by sub-soiling. It is also important that it be harrowed after each rainfall to prevent it from caking and becoming compact.

It is generally conceded that barnyard manure is the best fertilizer for the apple orchard. It not only supplies humus to the soil but adds to the bacteria that liberates the inert fertility that is locked up in the soil. Dr. U. P. Herrick of the New York Experiment Station tells us that the increase in yields of the experimental orchard where a complete fertilizer was used in comparison with the orchards that were not fertilized at all were not enough to pay the cost of material and the labor in applying it. That, without doubt, is true of the orchards in which the experiments were tried, but I don't think it would hold true under Maine conditions.

We find that our orchards do not respond to an application of either potash or phosphoric acid but have given an increased yield from the use of nitrate of soda of from twelve to eighty barrels per acre. Nitrogen seems to be the limiting factor in our soil and when it has been used judiciously the results have been very satisfactory from the standpoint of crop and the thrift of the trees. In some of the orchards when cultivation is not practical, mulch has been used very effectively and the expense not much different from cultivation and the quality of the fruit about the same.

The most important part of starting an orchard is the right selection of trees, for future profits of the investment depends upon this. Strong, vigorous one or two year old trees that have developed good root systems are the kind we should buy. These should be guaranteed to be true to name and free from disease and insect pests. Guard against too many insect varieties.

Don't overprune the young trees Develop the scaffold the first year and after that for the next five or six years do as little pruning as is consistent with keeping a well balanced head. Make up your mind whether you are to have a center leader type, an open top, or a modified type that will be a combination of the two. Too much pruning has the tendency to shock the trees and retard fruiting in the early stages of its growth.

Spraying is not a panacea for all ills but it is the one thing that cannot be neglected if we are to get fruit that will command the top market price.

It does not matter whether you use spray or dust so long as it is done thoroughly and at the right time and the right material used. The Maine Department of Agriculture and the University of Maine are putting out spray calendars that will tell you the whole story of how and when to spray.
